Once in a while, the work of a poet draws your attention. Perhaps the subject is one you appreciate. Perhaps the writing is unique. Perhaps the poet and the poem were the subject of a class in school. As a publisher, opening the mail and seeing work that you know in your heart is destined to be studied throughout the ages sends chill bumps down the spine. Sue Littleton's poetry gave us chill bumps. We feel privileged to be able to present not just her words but her voice and the voice of Frederico Geib as they narrate, both in Spanish and English, this moving poem, "Kite Paper, Papel de Barrilete."
